

Abstract of the Disclosure

A method relates to at least one of periodically recurring and consecutive treatments for a patient using a data record including a therapeutic information item. The method includes using therapeutic information items, stored in the data record, to identify at least one periodicity criterion. The method further includes using the identified at least one periodicity criterion to ascertain a subsequent treatment.